Access Narcan

One program reported that they “reduced overdose fatalities by 30%” by saturating their county with Narcan.

- Programs used data to identify specific neighborhoods and other locations experiencing an increase in overdoses to inform Narcan distribution efforts.
- Partnering with a wide variety of organizations and businesses was essential to Narcan distribution efforts. Narcan was distributed more broadly, including to underserved areas, such as:
 - Rural communities
 - Correctional facilities
 - Hospitals
 - Local libraries
 - Clothing stores
 - Art centers
 - K-12 Schools
 - Colleges and universities
 - Gaming centers
 - Laundromats
 - Funeral homes
 - Sporting arenas
 - Mutual aid groups
 - Parks and recreation centers
 - Gas stations
 - Local public health agencies
 - Religious institutions
 - Food banks and pantries
 - Police departments
 - Health care facilities
 - Jails
 - Public transportation entities
 - Tollways
 - Grocery stores
 - Clothing stores
 - Restaurants and bars
 - Used car dealerships
 - Illinois State Fair

We've partnered with local libraries, we've partnered with clothing stores, we've partnered with art centers, schools, gas stations, gaming centers, anything you can think of, laundromats, parks and recs, where we set up education sites. We've got brochures, bookmarks on how to use Naloxone, QR codes that take you to videos. All materials are in Spanish and English. Then we also have our Narcan at these sites. I believe we are at 125 sites across eight counties, which is impressive. – DOPP enrollee representative
